Learning resource advisors provide LRC inductions and information skills sessions for staff and students.

An induction to the learning resource centre is available to every new student and staff member. The advisors also deliver information literacy skills sessions called ‘There’s more to research than Google’. These are tailor-made to fit the needs of your students and can include the following topics:

- accessing electronic resources through LRC Online
- searching the library catalogue
- how to use a variety of information sources
- how to evaluate websites
- referencing and plagiarism

To arrange a session please contact your learning resource advisor.
